Claim Objections

Claim 2 is objected to because of the following informalities: The above claim is informal because there is no antecedent basis for the term "said contoured ramp surface" on line 1 of this claim. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by each of Erny or Erny et al. each of Erny and Erny et al teach a lining including a set of starter bricks (refractory components) for a ladle which could be employed for starting a spiral brick lining if desired, where the refractory components (30), which include at least 4 in the set, have a planar bottom surface, an upper surface which is flat and "contoured" (since without further description even a flat surface has a contour, since no refractory surface is perfectly flat), end surfaces (33, 34) dimensioned to fit together to form a ramp surface having a leading end (40) and trailing end (41) and where the trailing end ramp surface meets the relative definition of "nearly horizontal", thereby showing all aspects of the above claims, since both the actual manner or method of use of the claimed refractory set for the starting of a spiral lining (rather than the leveling use cited by both of Erny and Erny et al) cannot be relied upon to fairly further limit claims to the apparatus itself where, as in the instant case, the applied prior art apparatus could perform the claimed function. See MPEP 2114, 2115 and In re Casey, 152 USPQ 235; and the manner in which the claimed components are manufactured (cast or pressed) without any showing of a material difference in the final article itself, also cannot be relied upon to fairly further limit claims to the apparatus or article itself. See MPEP 2113 for example.

Claims 17-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Williamson et al. Williamson et al teaches a ladle lining including courses of refractory brick (28) with a starter set (27) of refractory bricks between, (see col. 9 lines 15-25 for example) where the starter set is formed of a set of at least 4 refractory bricks and form a contoured ramp with leading and trailing ends dimensioned so that adjacent ends mate with each other, thereby showing all aspects of the above claims.

Conclusion

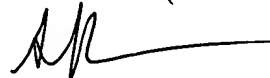

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Each of Napora, Kelsey and Hannah are also cited as further examples of prior art refractory brick sets.
